The Webb Schools

Background

A 150-acre campus in the foothills of Claremont, California—on the front porch of Los Angeles and part of the Pacific Rim. A boarding and day high school (9–12) with a 100-year legacy of putting honor and moral courage above all else. A fully accredited museum of paleontology. A college placement record that includes 90% of each graduating class attending colleges and universities in the top 10% nationwide. Students on campus hailing from 10 states and 15 countries. A commitment to team sports, outdoor adventure, and participation in the arts. These attributes only begin to describe what makes Webb, Webb. While the school was founded in 1922 in the great tradition of the best boarding schools of the eastern United States, Webb embraces the adventurous spirit of California where it thrives. Webb is a vibrant community of unbounded thinkers pushing to solve problems and growing as leaders.

Webb has a rich history of shepherding young people many who are far from home and providing a second family, shaping their foundation, instilling their values, and sending them off to all corners of the earth to positively impact the world. The Webb network of students, families, faculty, staff, alumni, and board members unite around their love for the school and the way in which their experiences at Webb changed them for the better.

Opportunities and Challenges

Webb's next CFO will join a financially sound and well-run institution with healthy admissions, strong donor support, a beautiful campus, and a warm and connected family feel that is unique to boarding schools. The leadership team is highly collaborative, productive, and open to learning and growth in pursuit of excellence.

Just wrapping up a $200 million centennial campaign and a recent Head of School transition, Webb is looking for a forward-thinking, visionary, and strategic Chief Financial Officer to partner with Head of School Theresa Smith. Leaning into innovation and thought leadership around educational creativity, Webb is excited to imagine a new model of impact for Webb students, families, and the greater high school ecosystem and is looking for an experienced and entrepreneurial CFO to join the team.

Given the rising costs of offering a premium educational program and maintaining a historic campus, the next CFO will need to focus attention on the challenge of access and affordability for families to send their students to Webb. Additionally, as a boarding school campus that includes the Alf Museum—a fully functional and renowned paleontology museum—managing Webb’s finances mimics the complexity of a small city; it will be imperative for the new CFO to establish strong relationships with all stakeholders in order to understand the complete picture and bring a strategic lens to envisioning Webb’s future.

Webb operates from a fiscally conservative mindset, and the next CFO will need to be similarly diligent about finances and resource allocation. Since the school has grown in complexity and in its assets, the new CFO will need to find the appropriate balance between being incredibly hands-on and delegating and growing the capacity of other team members. Thankfully, Webb’s longtime Chief Financial and Operations Officer will be transitioning to focus solely on operations in the 2024–25 school year and will be an incredible resource to the incoming CFO in whatever way the new leader wants and needs.

The Position: Chief Financial Officer

The Chief Financial Officer serves as a member of the senior leadership team and reports to the Head of School. The CFO provides leadership for the business office, including direct oversight of the Director of Human Resources, the Controller, the Senior Staff Accountant, and the Accounts Payable Analyst. This position interacts with board members, administrators, faculty, staff, parents, vendors, outside agencies, and auditors. The CFO is an integral member of the team, working on important strategic initiatives that include financial forecasting and modeling, debt and investment policy formulation, capital campaigns, gift acceptance protocols, and capital projects. The CFO serves as staff liaison on numerous committees to the Board of Trustees, including the Finance, Investment, and Audit Committees. One of the complexities of Webb's business office is managing both the larger corporate entity that is Webb as well as its subsidiary, the Alf Museum.

The CFO will work closely with the Head of School to oversee the financial systems of the school and ensure Webb's mission and excellent student programs remain at the center. Part of a collaborative leadership team, the CFO will work closely with admissions, advancement, communications and marketing, educational programs, and the Alf Museum as well as the Board of Trustees. The CFO manages relationships with outside financial institutions, agencies, and auditors and is involved in the financial planning of capital projects and strategic initiatives.
